

ALEXANDRIA.

TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 13.

CORPORAL TANNER's enemies in his own party are not satisfied with the whitewashing report in the case of his rerating the pensions of his particular friends, and demand that the investigation shall include but in the character of the platform it will his official acts during the whole time he has adopt. The hope among them is universal been in office, and, if need be, the conduct of his office during the incumbency of his democratic predecessor. Such an investigation should undoubtedly be made. It is by no means certain that the pension bureau was conducted without fault during the in cumbency of General Black; and if not, that fact should be known. It was said while the General was in office that of the hundred and thirteen working days in one of the years he spent 200 in traveling about the country making speeches to the G. A. R. Poor Tanner, however, is hardly worth talking about. He was keen set on being the commander of the G. A. R, but an inti mation from the President made him abandon that ambition at once.

DISAPPOINTMENT Is the lot of man, but that of the northern South-haters who have been expecting the conviction of the negro Yeldell, who was arrested in the North and carried to South Carolina, and tried there for murder, is sore indeed. They were sure that no negro charged with murder in South Carolina could ever escape hanging, and were especially convinced that the fate of one who had run away and been brought roign at once. But Mr. Clarkson is not a resignone who had run away and been brought back to that State, was signed and sealed. It is now pretty generally understood at the They, therefore, reveled in imagination over the morals they could point and the tales the morals the mora they could adorn, in respect of southern race p ejudice and injustice, by contrasting the strangulation of the "poor colored man," whose guilt had not been proved, with the acquittal of several white men, re cently tried there for murder, thou; b tenant Governor and Attorney Genera', will their hands were red with the blood of their meet in Armory Hall, Richmond, to morvictims. But all these bright imaginings, like Dead Sea fruit, have turned to ashes. The negro murderer was acquitted, and has dications are that it will be one of the larggone on his way to his northern home re-

No MATTER how wrong the New York Sun may be, and is, on the subject of the tariff, that it is eminently right on that of civil service is proved by the following, taken from its yesterday seditorial columns :

"Between party patronage judiciously bestowed and official largess selfishly applied there is a distinction to be made. The patronage given to a law partner, a wife's consin, a brother-in-law's uncle, a college classmate, a personal friend, or a flattering admirer, does no good either to the giver or to his party. The retaining of party opponents in office, and the exclusion of party friends is not sound policy as a general thing, except in the few peculiar cases where it may be advantageous to the public service. Neither is it proper to reward those whose indifference toward public concerns discourages and disheartens of from efforts in behalf of their party.'

THERE may be, and it is sincerely hoped there is, something in Dr. Brown Sequard's alleged discovery of the "elixir of life," but unfortunately for those who have fallen into the sere and yellow, physiology lends no fourth term in Congress. He rose from the cheer to such an invigorating hope. On the contrary, that science induces the belief that the stimulating effects of the 'elixir" would be increased, and would hardly be more evanescent, if it were composed of phosphorus, or any other stimulant, instead of animal matter, and that the condition of those who resort to its use, after the im. mediate effects of the temporary stimulation wears off, would be worse than before that stimu'ation commenced.

COTTON SEED oil is a southern product. Millions of gallons of it are experted to ly in manufacturing and commercial pur-Europe every year free of duty. It is there transformed into "clive oil," sardine oil and scap, and imported into this country under a heavy duty, to protect the oil refiners, fish packers and soap makers of the North. And yet there are men in the South who profess to be, and doubtless are, really interested in the prosperity of this section, who are opposed to tariff reform. With the abolition of the duty on the products of cotton seed oil, the export of that oil would be increased ten-fold, in order to supply the increased ter; Wm. A. A REIDSVILLE, N. C., negro, to whom Postmaster General Wanamaker recently sent a commission as postal route agent, received it in his cell in the State penitentiary, to which he had been sent for a burglary committed since he applied for office. He would have made a safe custodian of money orders and registered letters, wouldn't he? Mr. Wanamaker doesn't entrust negroes improperly exercised. Of course there is the usual talk of combinations and a possiwith responsible positions in his Philadelphia shop. But public business in the South is a matter in which the Postmaster General, naturally to him, is by no means so much interested.

THE probability now, as it has been from the first, is that Mr. Venable will be the gubernatorial nominee of the State democratic convention to meet in Richmond tomorrow. FROM WASHINGTON.

[Special Correspondence of the Alexa. GAZETTA] WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 13, 1889. A good deal of interest is manifested by Virginians here in the action of the democratic convention of Virginia, which wil meet in Richmond to morrow; not so much in the ticket the convention will nominate, that the convention may not put itself in opposition to the national democracy on the tariff question. The prevailing impression on the subject here is that Mr. Reed, of Maine, will be the Speaker of the next U. S. House of Repre sentatives, and that he will be elected the reason that if party exigencies require it, he will exercise arbitrary authority and re

People from Virginia here to-day, some from the Valley portion of the State, where it was supposed; the anti-Mahone feeling among republicans was strong, say that solid Mahone delegations to the republican State convention have been elected in most of the counties and towns in which delegates
